Education this Fall

The Fall education schedule at the Fiske Library will have several classes for genealogists who plan to use DNA in their research. The first class will give you an overview of the whole topic. It will discuss the world of DNA from an introduction level and explore some of the whys and hows you will encounter as you open the DNA door for your genetic genealogy journey. This is your class so bring lots of questions. Karen Sipe has taught many classes at the Fiske. Karin Borgerson, who has been the Education Director at Seattle Genealogical Society and chaired their DNA Interest group, will teach two classes. Come learn about the latest in DNA testing and the tools provided by the testing companies to interpret your results. A second will show us the newest tools that are useful in unlocking DNA. Jill Morelli will go in depth into a case study that uncovers Molly’s father.

While online research is extremely important to the genealogist, one expert at the national archive suggested that more than 98% of the records NARA holds are not online. How do we find where all that unmined gold lies hidden? There are finding aides. Fiske has volunteers who are creating finding aides for our records. Of the five major online resources, two are important to us in Seattle— ARCHIVEGRID and Archive West—ORBUS Cascade Alliance. The other three are Online Archive of California, TARO— Texas Archive Online and ROMA— Rocky Mountain Online Archive. Karl Kumm will introduce you to these resources. And then you can join us at the MOHAI library to begin mining.

The MOHAI library is located at 5933 6th Avenue South in Georgetown. There will be four research slots available to our class at 10 a.m. on Wednesday 3rd of October 2018. You will need to register with the archivist Anna Elam. Her phone number is 206-324-1126, extension 102. Her e-mail is anna.elam@mohai.org. You may fill out the MOHAI research request form. After the four earlybirds are registered later researchers may make an appointment for a research session on alternate dates.

There will also be classes on Irish Records, Federal Land Records and research in Western New York. For over twenty years Gary Zimmerman has been giving lectures at the Fiske. He will offer a class on research in Western New York. He emphasizes that historic events generate records valuable to our genealogical research. Janet O'Connor Camarata will lead a class on the Federal Land Survey Systems. She will give us an overview of the land survey systems used within the U.S., including metes and bounds. Learn basic terminology, understand platting property descriptions, general research strategies and how to use land records to unravel your ancestors' land history. Steven W. Morrison will share his techniques for stone wall jumping in Ireland. Irish research has the capacity to frustrate genealogists. He will note the top ten roadblocks and show us how to walk around or go through them.

The Fall schedule is posted on page eight. Please join us on Wednesdays!

Grays Harbor Genealogical Society Update

On Saturday morning, June 9, 2018, a fire destroyed the Aberdeen Armory which housed the Aberdeen Museum of History, the Grays Harbor Genealogical Society Research Library and a social services organization. While some artifacts from the Museum were saved, the GHGS Research Library was a total loss. Assistance in providing funds, supplies and research materials have been generously offered by many organizations and supporters. The Society is currently being hosted by the library in Hoquiam [see below] while they work to find a permanent home.

The Fiske Genealogical Foundation Board agreed to offer GHGS whatever they wanted from our surplus book list. As it turned out, we did not have much of what they needed. Before the fire GHGS had culled their library of all but those books dealing with the local area--indeed, the Fiske library benefitted from that redistribution. But we were able to send them a mint condition copy of the 2-volume Lewis County Centennial History and a book on early schools in Washington State.

Beyond books, the most serious losses were approximately 22,000 copies of area obituaries, 200 binders of funeral home records dating from 1907 to 2015, unpublished local history and responses to queries. Research volunteer Bonnie Johannes reports:

Since 2011 I have done most of the researches for GHGS. Fortunately, I've kept a log (short notes of each request along with post or e-mail addresses). It will not surprise me that I've done 350-400 from likely every state in the union and several from Europe. We did lose all the copies of those researches in the fire along with all others that were done previously. It was a packed 4-drawer steel cabinet. I am in the process of contacting as many of these past clients as possible to have them copy the documents that were sent them and return to us. We will be digitizing all from now forward.

If you have research, obituaries or family histories from the Grays Harbor area, please contact Bonnie via info@graysharborgenealogy.com. Grays Harbor Genealogical Society meetings are currently held at the Hoquiam Timberland Regional Library meeting room at 420 7th Street, Hoquiam, Washington. Visitors are always welcome. The GHGS website is at <http://www.graysharborgenealogy.com/index.php>

An Unexpected Visitor

Contributed by Eldon Davis

Saturday August 11, 2018 was my Library volunteer day. Usually on my day attendance is light, but by 11 AM two people arrived to do research. Then near noon, a group of six people came in.

The group consisted of a lady and her husband, one of their sons and his wife, and the latter's two young daughters. I asked them, "What type of research is this group going to do on a relatively nice day?" To my surprise and shock the lady said, "We aren't here to do research, we are here to see the Library my uncle Arthur Fiske started – I am his niece!"

Wow, that was an astounding pronouncement to hear when my Saturdays at Fiske are usually just me, and I sometimes say "Arthur's ghost."

They had just come from the Olympic peninsula visiting another son's family who had recently had a new baby. And now they were in Seattle to do some sightseeing including the famous Fiske Genealogy Library. At that point I should have asked where they lived since they were in Seattle to sightsee. But unfortunately, I didn't as I guess I was overwhelmed with the presence of Arthur's relatives.

I now had the pleasure of showing them around the library begun by Arthur which over the years has had a number of changes. To begin with it seemed very appropriate to take some pictures of them in front of the burgundy colored wall with "The Arthur Fiske Genealogy Library" in gold letters. But before I took the pictures I mentioned that Gary Zimmerman who helped Arthur begin the Library was upstairs at a meeting and would very much like to meet them. So up I went to tell Gary and he said he'd be down in just a few minutes. I took pictures on several different cameras and about that time Gary came down.

When he was greeting the niece it seemed to me like he knew her, but later I found out that was not the case. Gary then went behind the glass book case and brought out the colored pedigree chart for Arthur and his fan chart. Both pieces were very much appreciated by the family and more pictures were taken.

At about that point the niece told us she and others of her generation never called Arthur by that name but instead called him "Donald" which was his middle name. Arthur's father's name was also Arthur, so it just made it easier using a different name within the family. The family also learned that the mother of Arthur was born in Iowa; they had never known that. It turned out the location was just about 200 miles from where the son of the niece now lived.

Gary related how Arthur began his collection in a building on Queen Anne Hill, but eventually got so many books he needed a larger facility. Someone associated with the Pioneer Association of Washington heard about this and said there was space in their building's basement. This is about the time Gary got involved. So Arthur brought over about 5000 volumes in 1992. Today the Fiske Library has nearly 12,000 volumes.

I proceeded to show the family the major features of the Library and point out several aspects that I had been told regarding Arthur's influence. Originally, all books were arranged alphabetically i.e. by county, state level, county level, then town level within a given geographic area. I noted that Arthur didn't care for the Dewey decimal system; however, I mentioned 10+ years ago we changed a bit and got aligned with the Library of Congress system with a few variations.

I pointed out the extensive collection of card files that Arthur had initiated as a means of cross - referencing surnames found in various books.

The final thing I showed them was a different type of ancestry. This involved a willow tree on the waterfront side of the Library. As I remembered the story (in short form) the ancestor of this tree originally stood near the grave of Napoleon Bonaparte, Emperor of France. A sapling was taken from the tree to the Washington D. C. area. Later on, a sapling from that tree was brought to Seattle. At its first location it turned out to be in the path of the I-5 Freeway. Someone associated with the Pioneer Building suggested a sapling could be planted there. And so it was and still resides. It appeared to me the family enjoyed that story as much as the human type of ancestry. And with that the family was off to see the other sights of Seattle.

And now the sad part of this story. Upon hearing "no research" I thought "OK, we don't have to sign them in." Then thinking Gary knew the niece, I assumed he had her name. For some reason throughout the hour plus they were present their actual names did not come up nor their residence other than the son's family lived in Minnesota. Perhaps through the means of modern social media or maybe looking at the Newsletter mailing list we can track down the name of the unexpected visiting niece of Arthur Fiske.

The Fiske Genealogical Foundation is a nonprofit service organization that provides genealogical training and resource materials.

The Fiske Genealogical Foundation Newsletter is published four times per year by the Fiske Genealogical Foundation, 1644 43rd Avenue East, Seattle, WA 98112; phone (206) 328-2716. The newsletter is included with membership or a separate mail subscription of $6.00 per year. It is also available online for no charge.

Recent Library Acquisitions

Newly acquired books are processed by cataloguing, entering the Fiske Library holding information into WorldCat, and affixing ownership barcodes to bound books (on the back cover and on the title page).

Once they are finally on the shelving in the library, they appear in our "Recent Acquisitions" list in the Newsletter. Library of Congress call numbers [in square brackets below] will quickly lead you to the material on the shelf at the Fiske Library.

If the LC number is followed by PAWA, the book must be retrieved from other library collections within the building. Ask a volunteer for assistance.

FamilySearch Interest Group

Are you missing some really important information in your family tree? Have you searched the pages of the FamilySearch.com website for new family connections, pictures, stories, sources and maybe even audio recordings of your relatives? Do you know how to access unindexed records on the site? Do you know how to attached suggested records? Have you used the Wiki?

Even if you haven't entered information on the site your family tree is probably already there. Aren't you curious about what other members of your family have entered? A great opportunity for family collaboration and It's free!

For those of you who have already started the FamilySearch adventure come join us to learn about all the different features of the site.

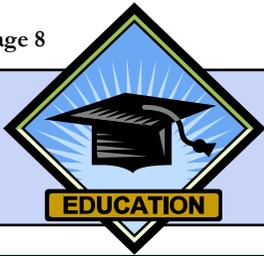

Starting Wednesday October 3rd, 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. in Pioneer Hall [main floor level] and running through June 2019 [except Jan. 2] there will be a meeting the first Wednesday evening of every month to go over the details of this amazing website. Easy to use and yet it can do very complicated things. Come find out what it's all about. Hope to see you there.

There is also a FamilySearch interest group that meets on the first Saturday of each month at Seattle Genealogical Society from 10:15 -12:15, October through June.

Newsletter Submissions

Have you discovered a particularly useful resource in your research, or broken through a brick wall? Would you be interested in submitting an article for the newsletter? Articles can be 1-2 pages long and may be subject to gentle editorial comment.

Is there a class you'd like to see offered or is there a research issue on which you are stuck? Your editor would like to feature a semi-regular column with your input.

Our newsletter is published in September, December, April and June. Deadlines are the 20th of the month preceding publication. Writers—articles are always needed and appreciated! Please send queries or submissions to editor@fiskelibrary.org.

TIP: If you struggle with online URLs printed in our paper copy of the newsletter, go to our online version where you can just click the URL. If you don't have online access, you can use the library's computer.

Holiday Closures

The Fiske Genealogical Library will be closed on Monday, September 3, 2018 for Labor Day and on Thursday, November 22, 2018 for Thanksgiving.

Our Appreciation for Book Donations

We appreciate the contributions by the following supporters of the Fiske Library. Since the last newsletter, donations have been catalogued and added to the collections on the shelves. There often is a lag between the date of the actual donation and the completion of the cataloguing, book repair, and placement in the active collection.
